

Prayer trumps any parenting style. It's also a blanket of grace, covering our mistakes and failures. When our children struggle, this blanket catches them. Prayers are powerful and effective.

Here's the prayer I prayed with my children every night:

I pray for my children's future spouse,
and for God to surround them with a Christ-centered community.

I pray that my children would seek godly wisdom and counsel, and that they would strive to understand that there's always a bigger picture.

I pray for God to protect my children's hearts and their minds.
